To the family I am so sorry to hear of such loss, I know in times like these we simply dont understand and we dont know why, but we have to trust God and know He doesnt make any mistakes. He never told us we would understand the sovereignty of His hand, He never said we would fully understand why He allows us to go through such Heartache, but through it all He said He would never leave us nor forsake us, and He promised He would be there to wipe your every tear. I know right now this is a storm that is hard to bear, but trust God He will give you peace beyond all understanding and He will give you strength you need to move forward. We will keep you all in our prayers
